To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to provide this letter of recommendation for Rolling Plains Construction, who is serving as a key subcontractor for the Tennessee Builders Alliance on the New Tennessee Titans Stadium project in Nashville, Tennessee. As the general contractor responsible for delivering a high-profile and technically demanding facility, we require subcontractors who consistently meet elevated standards of quality, coordination, and safety. Rolling Plains is proving to be exactly that.

During their time on this project, they have jumped in to not only deliver exceptional performance on complex structural components but served as a true partner and expert by pouring hours into advising the design team on the most economical solutions to this buildings challenges. Their team demonstrates expertise in both cementitious and intumescent fireproofing systems, ensuring all assemblies meet the required fire ratings and adhere strictly to project specifications, UL designs, and applicable codes.

The scale and pace of stadium construction demands precise coordination. Rolling Plains excels in this area, maintaining clear communication with our project managers, meeting aggressive schedule milestones, and integrating seamlessly with other trades working in congested areas. Their proactive approach to sequencing, inspection readiness, and field verification helps prevent delays and contributes significantly to maintaining the project schedule.

Rolling Plains has proven themselves to be a dependable and highly skilled subcontractor, capable of performing on projects of substantial size and complexity. Based on their outstanding performance to date, we confidently recommend them for any future work.

Sincerely,

Kody Carson
